

Recognising right and left hearing aid

Your hearing aids are programmed for each ear. It is important that you wear the correct hearing aid in each ear and do not swap them. Your hearing aids have coloured markers to help you with knowing which ear they are programmed for.

The red marker indicates the right hearing aid and the blue marker the left hearing aid.

The image on this page shows you where you can find your coloured marker.

If you cannot see any coloured markers please contact your local audiology department.
